The Third Hand Art Therapy at Cleveland Clinic

May 11 – June 22, 2018

Julia and Larry Pollock Gallery, Cleveland Clinic main campus

The term “the third hand” refers to the assistance an art therapist offers during the creative process in an art therapy session. In celebration of the Arts & Medicine Institute's 10-year anniversary The Third Hand features artwork made by patients and caregivers during art therapy sessions at Cleveland Clinic. Serving on the frontlines of patient care, art therapists encourage self-expression through painting, drawing, collage and other interventions. They provide patients and caregivers with specific tools to better manage the anxiety, pain, fear and emotional distress that often accompanies a hospital visit. Artworks resulting from these therapy sessions act as visual documents of the creator's emotional journey. Inspired by a young artist's experience as a long-term patient, this exhibition highlights the courageous stories of the individuals behind each image to celebrate the importance of artistic expression and the impact of art therapy on the patient experience.

Art in the Afternoon

Arts Videos On-Demand

A series of short documentary films produced by Cleveland Arts Prize highlights the life and work of visual artists, musicians, writers, architects and others who have been awarded the prize. Access the videos on Patient Television On Demand (dial 51616), catalogue numbers 651-699, or at the top of each hour on Channel 44.

VIEW ART COLLECTION ONLINE

Cleveland Clinic commemorates the 10th anniversary of its Arts & Medicine Institute with a new book, Power of Art: Cleveland Clinic Collection, which illustrates the visual history of the Art Program and features a selection of the 6,400 works of contemporary art. A digital version of the book is available for free online at clevelandclinic.org/power-of-art.
