Department of Orthopaedic Surgery

Opportunity for Support
Help Us Meet A Growing Need
Musculoskeletal diseases are the leading cause of disability in the United States, afflicting more than one in four Americans. The resulting pain, medical expense and loss of productivity — including lost wages — create tremendous strain on individuals, families and society.

Supporting orthopaedic advancement is crucial right now, as the disease burden grows along with our aging population. Cleveland Clinic Florida’s Department of Orthopaedic Surgery is poised to provide more people with greater solutions for their pain. But we need your help to meet the increasing demand.

Thanks to advanced medical care and wellness initiatives, people are living longer, healthier lives. Still, musculoskeletal disorders account for more than half of all chronic conditions in people over 50. Your gift will help us pave the way to meet these emerging needs — from simple fractures to the most complex conditions.

Florida’s Unique Position
